JETT FOUNDATIONS THAT HAVEN'T CHANGED

A Purpose-Built, Intuitive Platform	JETT remains the premier government-owned system for Industry and Academia to share capabilities and innovations with the CBRND enterprise and our partners.
Direct Engagement with Subject-Matter Experts	Our commitment to facilitate meaningful interactions with the U.S. Government decision-makers and technical experts – including DASW (CBRND), CBDDP, BARDA, DARPA, WRAIR, USPTO, and others.
A Central CBRND Opportunity Hub	Amplification of CBRND opportunities across our USG and Innovation stakeholder network.
Not a Source-Selection Portal	Information submitted through JETT will not be used to award contracts. Industry participation is voluntary and does not influence funding decisions, government standing, or solicitation evaluations.
Not Approved for Sensitive Data	JETT is intended only for information suitable for public sharing – similar to a discussion at a conference or trade show. Follow-on engagements, such as industry days, support sharing sensitive information.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: I've already completed my JETT submission – do I need a dedicated account?

A: Any previous submissions remain active, but we strongly encourage you to create an account. This critical step ensures your information is stored, streamlining future collaboration with the CBRND enterprise.

Q: Does the account allow me to edit previous submissions?

A: Yes – you now have full control over your JETT materials, allowing you to update at any time.

Q: Does having a JETT account offer advantages when looking to engage CBRND SMEs directly?

A: No – industry accounts do not offer additional channels to have dialogue with our SMEs. Primary communication will continue through dedicated JETT capability sessions, industry-focused events, and our email help desk.

Q: If I submit an RFI, does scheduling a JETT session connect me directly with the RFI owner?

A: Attendance by the RFI owner during a JETT session is not guaranteed due to scheduling demands. All RFI submissions are routed for official review, and any follow-up engagement is at the RFI owner's discretion.

Q: When do I know if it's time to schedule a follow-up JETT session?

A: We look forward to you scheduling a JETT capability session when you have meaningful capability updates, or when it's been 6+ months since your last JETT engagement.
